Biography of Olivia Wang

UNSUNG HEROES OF INK is Olivia Wang's debut documentary, which she directed and produced. Olivia is an independent art curator, consultant and writer. Her writing on contemporary Chinese ink art has appeared in the Wall Street Journal, ArtAsiaPacific, Orientations, Journal of Contemporary Chinese Art, among others. Olivia holds a BA from Brown University and an MPhil from Oxford University.

Synopsis

Appreciation for Chinese ink painting is growing, but much of the art form remains unexplored. In the era of the "rockstar artist", there is so much focus on the artist that the role of paper is often overlooked. UNSUNG HEROES OF INK seeks to redress this balance. Artists Liu Dan and Shao Fan explain how paper shapes their work. Their collaborators are craftspeople in China's remote Anhui Province, who observe ancient, labour-intensive methods to hand-produce xuan paper. These craftspeople, who have spent a lifetime honing their skills, are the "unsung heroes of ink".
