Abstract

The sudden emergence of Su Shi's Old Tree, Rock, and Bamboo into the public light a few years past provided a rare opportunity to examine closely this famous scroll that includes Su Shi's painting and Mi Fu's calligraphy. With the focus on the scroll's authenticity, there were renewed interest and disagreement regarding the scroll's seals. In this lecture, it will be demonstrated that further examination of the seals leads to a rare opportunity to reconstruct not only the later history of this famous scroll containing Su's and Mi's "twin treasures," but rare insight into the scroll's making and reception.
